

Yanks Penetrate Hitler's Redoubt Berlin Is in Its Final Death Throes

Russian Armies Open New Drive to Meet Yanks

Second Junction with Americans Would Iso- late Baltic Ports

LONDON, Saturday, April 28 (AP)—Russian armies, conquering three-quarters of dying Berlin and seizing its last airfield, left the German capital to dust-choked storm troops yesterday and struck west in offensives toward a second junction with American forces and the isolation of Germany's last Baltic ports.

Berlin, writhing in its final death throes, was a wilderness of crumpled stone and steel swept by time-tinged winds and, though its defenders resisted fanatically in a struggle, its inner and outer defenses were cracking fast.

Potsdam, Spandau Fall

Potsdam, cradle of Prussianism and the city's southwestern limits, fell and with it went the great eastern suburb of Spandau and the districts of Schmargendorf, Neukölln, Tempelhof, and the great Tempelhof airfield, the last air escape and supply route, was overrun.

Enemy broadcasts admitted that the situation was "critical" as the Soviets battered out advances of a mile and more around the blasted inner core of the capital. The Germans insisted that Adolf Hitler was still there, prepared to die a martyr's death in a battle which Germany's fading radios said would be the last.

Reds Capture Rathenow

Premier Stalin, in one of four triumphant orders of the day, announced that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army had captured Rathenow, thirty-three miles west of Berlin, in drive that by-passed the great city of Brandenburg.

The sweep, by a twenty-two-mile advance from Nauen, carried Russian troops within thirteen miles of the Ninth Army standing on the Elbe at Tangermünde. Additionally, it deepened the band of steel around encircled Berlin and virtually wiped out any Nazi hopes of rushing reinforcements into doom-stricken Berlin through Russian lines.

Patrols May Be Meeting

This indicated that Red army and American patrols may be meeting along a fifty-mile front extending from Wittenberg southwest to Riesa. At any rate, Konev's troops at Wittenberg were only seventeen miles east of other United States First Army positions at Dessau.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian Army at the same time was striking out on a sixty-three-mile front to thirteen miles while Red air force bombers blasted the Baltic seaports of Swinemünde and Greifswald, apparently the next Red army objectives.

Truman Reports First Junction Of Reds, Yanks

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—President Truman triumphantly announced the junction of American and Russian armies in Germany today, but emphasized that vast tasks of war and peace still lie ahead.

Congressmen and others at the capital joined the president in his assessment of the junction as a long step — but only a step — toward final goals.

Mr. Truman, in a statement at noon, eastern war time, simultaneously announced in London and Moscow gave more attention to the present and future Allied collaboration which it signifies, than to the mechanics of linking the armies that cut the Reich in two.

Genoa Entered By Fifth Army; Nazis May Quit

ROME, April 27 (AP)—American Fifth Army troops smashed into the great port of Genoa today, a special Allied headquarters communiqué announced, as the "Free Milan" radio declared German commanders were trying to negotiate a general surrender of their hopelessly trapped forces in Northern Italy.

Allied headquarters did not confirm the report, but conceded that American and other Allied armored columns slashing across the final miles to the Alps were meeting only "generally weak and disorganized" resistance.

Second Junction of Allied Troops Farther South Is Believed Likely

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The War Production Board today restored to nationwide effect its "spot" reconversion plan for civilian goods production.

The action, a major step in WPB's program to get partial reconversion underway as rapidly as munitions outbacks occur, puts the plan back in operation in 184 cities and major industrial areas where it had been suspended.

Soviet Union Given 3 Votes By Conference

Four Foreign Secretaries Will Serve Equally as Chairmen

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
SAN FRANCISCO, April 27 (AP)—The United Nations put their Polish, Russian and leadership rows behind them today and strode forward together on the road they mean to build toward a durable peace.

Without a ripple of dissension which had boiled up earlier between Russia on one side and the United States and Britain on the other, the world security conference voted to:

- 1. Make the foreign secretaries of the four sponsoring powers — the United States, Britain, Russia and China — equal chairmen of the conference. They will preside in turn and consult regularly among themselves on a conference program.
- 2. Hand the chairmanship of the all-important Steering and Executive committees to Secretary of State Stettinius. These are the agencies which will do most of the conference work.
- 3. Grant representation in a general assembly of a projected world organization to the Ukraine and White Russia. Since the Soviet Union itself will have an assembly vote, this will mean a total of three for Russia.
- 4. Put fourteen members on the Conference Executive committee.
- 5. Make the Dumbarton Oaks peace plan, engineered in Washington by the four sponsors, the agenda for the conference.

For Russia, the day's develop- ments added up to a victory on the three assembly votes, a compromise on conference leadership, and a set- back on seating the present Polish regime in Warsaw at this conference table. (China, Britain and America are expected to line up against Russia on the Polish issue.)

For the world, they meant that the conference finally had achieved enough harmony so it could buckle down to work.

The fight over issues had been restricted to the Steering committee. It found solutions without too much trouble today and unanimous votes of the full conference quickly sealed the agreements.

Molotov Compromises But a twenty-four-hour tug of war over leadership ended only with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov agreeing to four chairmen and the appointments for Stettinius — a compromise the Russian previously had spurned.

This is the language on that point ratified by the full conference.

"The meeting recommends that there be four presidents who will preside in rotation at the plenary sessions. These four may meet from time to time with Mr. Stettinius presiding over these meetings and Mr. Stettinius to be chairman of the executive and steering committees, the three others delegating full powers to Mr. Stettinius for conducting the business of the conference."

On Poland, the conference adopted this resolution: "The governments of the United Nations express to the people of Poland their sympathy and admiration. They hope that the constitution of a Polish government, recognized as such by the sponsoring nations, will make it possible for Polish delegates to come and take part as soon as possible in the work of the conference."

Whoopee on the Elbe: G. I. Joe and Ivan Drink Champagne From Beer Mugs at Victory Meeting

By DON WHITEHEAD AND HAL BOYLE
TORGAU, Germany, April 26 (Delayed) (AP)—Americans and Russians sat in the warm sunshine on both banks of the Elbe today, drinking champagne from beer mugs, pounding each other on the back and toasting the historic occasion of the meeting of their two armies.

There was singing and dancing and the troops of the two nations, seeing each other for the first time, whooped it up and formed firm friendships despite the handicaps of language. It was enough that they were Allies and had whipped the enemy.

Very Young and Very Tough The stocky smiling Russians, looking very young and very tough, were ecstatic. They ceremoniously saluted and shook hands with everyone they met. They crushed your hand until you wondered how many handshakes you could stand.

Almost every Russian had a tom- mygun slung across his shoulder. Revolvers were in their hip pockets and their belts were festooned with grenades and knives. Most of them wore medals on their thick chests. All around there was the sound of shooting as the Russians worked off excess energy and excitement.

It's a Real Celebration It was a celebration unlike any- thing seen before in this war — a great party, with doughboys and Russians singing, laughing and dancing and trying to talk to each other in sign language. A few Americans who spoke Russian in- terpreted.

A Russian sat on a stone wall playing an accordion while Sgt. Andrews Marriock of Hudson, N. Y., joined in the Red army song — "If War Should Come Tomorrow We Will Be Prepared on Land, at Sea and in the Air."

Discipline Is Strict A Russian captain took us across the river and we walked to a Rus- sian regimental command post. Along the road Russian troops snapped smartly to attention and saluted whenever we passed. There was an easy informality between officers and enlisted men, but at the same time it was noticeable that discipline was strict.

Whenever an American approach- ed a group of Russians they smiled broadly, saluted and shook hands. Some of the more enthusiastic ones who had "liberated" stores of Ger- man champagne and cognac elaborated on this greeting with a great hug that cracked the ribs.

At the command post there was a milling throng of Americans and Russians about tables loaded with fried eggs, bread, sardines, salmon and spaghetti.

Their Happiest Day Maj. Mitri Livitch of Marshal Konev's Fifty-eighth division wel-were revolting in the south and northeast the dispatch said, adding:

"The meeting agreed to advise Hitler immediately to cease completely the hopeless struggles."

The newspaper commented that "no government authority exists any longer nor any united army leadership. The collapse is total, as never before in the history of war."

Gain 26 Miles West of Nazis' Munich Citadel

American Tank Columns Not Opposed in Aus- trian Drive

By ROBERT EUNSON
PARIS, Saturday, April 28 (AP)—American tank columns invaded Austria yesterday, advanced twenty-six miles west of the Nazi Citadel of Munich, and crashed into the western end of Hitler's Alpine redoubt.

While the United States Third Army, plowing unopposed into Austria, made radio contact with Russian southern armies less than eighty-five miles to the southeast, two United States Seventh Army armored divisions went on a tear farther west.

The Tenth armored division sent one column spearing twenty-eight miles east into Landsberg, only twenty-six miles east of Munich, birthplace of Nazism and now con- sidered the northern outpost for the final death stand.

Reich Bavarian Alps Another column raced fourteen miles straight south into the Bavar- ian Alps, driving ten miles or so into what is probably Hitler's inner Fortress, and reached Kempten, eleven miles from the Austrian frontier.

The push threatened to cut in behind any Germans in the redoubt concentrated around the area of Lake Constance, some thirty miles to the west. The tank crews here were sixty-five miles from the northern mountain border of Italy.

The Twelfth armored division likewise was racing east close on the north flank of the Tenth arm- ored division, and after hurdling the Wurtach river, was about thirty miles west of Munich.

Both columns, with the endless lines of infantry swinging up pon- derously from behind, expected to meet savage resistance in Hitler's old home town of Munich.

The Third Army, crossing the Danube repeatedly, also was march- ing on Munich from the north and last was reported 38 miles away.

While these blows made the for- midable and well-defended southern pocket tremble, the battle against the northern pocket was rising in fury.

A field dispatch from the Cana- dian First army front said waves of young and fanatic Germans were hurting themselves at the Cana- dians in a suicidal version of the Ja- panese Banzai charge, and were be- lieved mowed down "by the thou- sands."

These Germans had no choice but to before the naval ports of Wilhelmshaven and Emden, for the fall of Bremen had cut them off from the east.

Holland Needs Food From the western Holland front came reports that the civilian popu- lation had but a three weeks supply of food left, which put not only the Dutch but the 100,000 Germans holed up there in dire straits.

A report from the Third army front said that a junction with the Russians was expected shortly, shearing Czechoslovakia's arsenals off from the German fortress of the south.

The United States Third Army, while invading Austria, likewise completed the destruction of the Danube river line by seizing Regen- sburg and Ingolstadt, twin strong- holds thirty-five miles apart on the stream north of Munich.

The French First army hammer- ing at the fortress's western battle- ments, stormed through weak de- fenses and captured Constance, on the lake of the same name, where high Nazis first took refuge against the Allied storm.

Kesseling Falling Back Field Marshal Albert Kesseling's battered armies of the south were falling back all along the great re- doubt incoherently on the redoubt of mountains, lakes and rivers.

Reports current on the front said Kesseling had been trapped in Regensburg along with his garrison, but a field dispatch reporting fall of the city made no mention of him.

Huge Quantities of Poison Gas Found in the Regensburg Area

WITH THE UNITED STATES SIXTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, April 27 (AP)—The Germans assigned to defend the Regensburg area had huge quantities of poison gas on hand, but made no effort to use it.

Instead, they sent emissaries carrying white flags into the American lines with exact information on the location of the poison gas so the American artillery would not turn loose the deadly vapor.

The Americans first learned of the gas when Germans entering the line said five barges on the Danube were filled with enough gas to cover eighteen square miles. They asked that the barges not be fired upon. The Americans complied quickly, and seized the barges a few hours later.

Three other emissaries some time afterward said a five-square-mile area south of Regensburg contained millions of cubic feet of poison gas, and suggested the area be declared neutral. It was.

State Veterans' Commission Will Open Office Here

Assistant Service Officer and Secretary Will Be on Duty

Establishment of an office in Cumberland by the Maryland Veterans' Commission for the purpose of assisting war veterans was disclosed last night by Joseph A. Cantrell, chairman of the commission, at a meeting of the Mountain District Veterans' Association in city hall.

The office will be established here as well as in other communities of the state as a result of legislation passed by the state legislature, according to Thomas F. Conlon, chairman of the Mountain District Veterans' Association.

Immediately after the bill becomes effective on July 1, the office will be set up here and will be known as the Mountain District office.

Must Be Veteran
An assistant service officer, who must be a war veteran, and a secretary, who must be a member of a veteran's family, will be on duty at the office.

The assistant service officer will be instructed in his duties by Richard C. Manning, state service officer and executive.

Among the duties of the assistant service officer will be visits to all communities in Allegany and Garrett counties, which form the Mountain district, to assist veterans.

Discusses Commission
Cantrell discussed and explained the state veterans commission from the time it was originated in 1924 to the present, including legislation passed at the last session of the state assembly.

Manning and C. Bernie Cassal, national district executive committee member of the Forty and Eight, spoke briefly.

Posts of nearly all veterans' organizations in Allegany and Garrett counties were represented at the meeting.

with his arm about a pretty Russian girl, and they were oblivious to all the color of the momentous occasion. They had worked together in a factory near a prison camp and had fallen in love. Now he was planning how to take her home with him.

The entire day was a fantastic, memorable one, crammed with emotional outbursts, from the time a column of the sixty-ninth infantry set out for Torgau on the Elbe, where contact had been made with the Russians the previous day.

Meet German Civilians
As the doughboys marched along a road from the Mulde river to the Elbe they met thousands of German civilians fleeing before the Russians, hoping vainly to find safety within American lines.

On the east bank of the Mulde thousands of civilians were gathered, their belongings stacked into little carts. Bedding, food, clothing, pots, pans and huge bundles burdened the carts. It was the first time American troops had looked on scenes which showed so clearly Germany's defeat.

Mothers hauled their children in carts. Women stumbled along with huge bundles on their backs in the choking dust, just as the frightened people of Belgium and France fled before the Nazis five years ago.

Nazi Soldiers on March
Columns of German soldiers marched along the road to the west without anyone to guard them. They had had enough and were quitting the fight. Liberated British prisoners of war walked in long columns alongside the German soldiers and Hitler youth. It was a league of nations on the march.

And there was no chance for the Germans to pass through the American lines. Orders had been issued that all Germans in the path of the Russian advance must stay east of the Mulde.

As the American column, composed principally of jeeps, rolled into the market square of Torgau, the Russians emerged from the buildings and the doughboys made a concerted rush to meet the Red army men. From that point on it was a party.

Each of three American patrols which made the first contacts with the Soviet troops within a few hours of each other Wednesday afternoon were from the Two Hundred and Seventy-third infantry regiment which a week before had captured most of Leipzig.

Col. C. M. Adams of Hazleton, Pa., commander of the Two Hundred and Seventy-third, said the honor of being the first patrol to meet the Russians belonged to a twenty-eight-man "task force" led by Lt. Albert L. Kotzebue of Houston, Tex. He said Kotzebue and his men met Cossack foot infantry at 1:32 p. m. at a point less than four miles west of Riesa.

Another patrol of thirty-one men led by Maj. Fred W. Craig of Friendship, Tenn., made contact with Cossack horse-mounted infantry at Clanzschwitz, five miles northwest of Riesa, at 3:45 p. m. A third patrol of three men led by Lt. William D. Robertson of Los Angeles made contact at 4:40 p. m. in the middle of the Elbe at Torgau. Robertson and a Russian private squirmed across a girder of a bridge blown up by the Germans earlier in the day, shook hands and pounded each other on the back.

Second Junction

Nazi army elements as well as German regular forces is vividly indicated in front line dispatches describing the first Russian-American contact scene at Torgau on the Elbe. To effect that touch with the troops, American Jeeps plowed their way through hordes of German civilians in flight from the Russians, hoping for shelter within American lines.

Obviously, nowhere from the lower Elbe to the Sudeten mountains is there anything approaching organized resistance. It is no longer a war in much of Germany, but a problem for the victors of what to do with the mobs of refugees, both civilian and military, caught between closing Allied and Russian lines.

If there is any semblance of a fight-to-the-death attitude anywhere in Germany except in Russian beset Berlin, it is around the falling North Sea and Baltic ports in the fast shivering northern pocket. Southward in Austria and Bavaria predictions that a stubborn last defense of the national redoubt would be encountered have so far gone unfulfilled.

The situation in Italy no less shows military disintegration at work. American troops on General Clarke's left of line leaped into Genoa at a bound. His center in captured Verona closed the Brenner pass escape gate on the main body of the foe fleeing before him.

This may not be victory day for the United Nations fellowship in Germany; but it is so close to it that a reordering of effort for the mopping-up and a post-victory formula of cooperation probably figured more largely in first face-to-face Russian-Ally staff talks than military strategy or tactical deployment arrangements.

Nazi army elements as well as German regular forces is vividly indicated in front line dispatches describing the first Russian-American contact scene at Torgau on the Elbe. To effect that touch with the troops, American Jeeps plowed their way through hordes of German civilians in flight from the Russians, hoping for shelter within American lines.

Obviously, nowhere from the lower Elbe to the Sudeten mountains is there anything approaching organized resistance. It is no longer a war in much of Germany, but a problem for the victors of what to do with the mobs of refugees, both civilian and military, caught between closing Allied and Russian lines.

If there is any semblance of a fight-to-the-death attitude anywhere in Germany except in Russian beset Berlin, it is around the falling North Sea and Baltic ports in the fast shivering northern pocket. Southward in Austria and Bavaria predictions that a stubborn last defense of the national redoubt would be encountered have so far gone unfulfilled.

The situation in Italy no less shows military disintegration at work. American troops on General Clarke's left of line leaped into Genoa at a bound. His center in captured Verona closed the Brenner pass escape gate on the main body of the foe fleeing before him.

This may not be victory day for the United Nations fellowship in Germany; but it is so close to it that a reordering of effort for the mopping-up and a post-victory formula of cooperation probably figured more largely in first face-to-face Russian-Ally staff talks than military strategy or tactical deployment arrangements.

FBI Conference To Be Held Here

Fred Halford, special agent in charge of the Baltimore office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced today that the first FBI law enforcement conference to be held this year in Cumberland will be on Wednesday, May 9, at 10 a. m., for the benefit of police officers from various local law enforcement agencies located in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Special agents of the FBI will give a demonstration on the use of firearms, which will include trick shooting with small arms and practical courses adopted by the FBI for its regular firearms training program. In addition, other matters of interest to the police will be discussed.

Other conferences will be held by the Baltimore office of the FBI in Maryland at Hagerstown, Hyattsville, Salisbury, Easton, and Baltimore, and at Wilmington, Dover, Delaware, during the month of May.

CANCER CLINIC HERE APPROVED BY AMERICAN COLLEGE OF SURGEONS

The cancer clinic in Memorial hospital is one of three operating in the State of Maryland and is recognized by the American College of Surgeons, according to Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, commander of District No. 1 in the first major fund campaign of the American Cancer Society in which Allegany county's quota is $2,500.

Other clinics in the state are located in Baltimore and Salisbury. Some four hundred such approved clinics have already been set up over the country.

"There is a strong demand for the establishment of such clinics," the campaign director for five Western Maryland counties, declared.

"Clinics cannot prevent cancer in every case, but a number of cancer cases will be prevented by clinical detection."

"Cancer does not come from eating fresh bread, cooking in aluminum utensils or drinking large quantities of milk. What it does come from must be the subject of continued study, made possible by public contributions."

Funds contributed by the public will be spent in the best possible way to the end that cancer, which strikes everywhere, may be controlled, and finally, decisively checked.

German People Now Stand Convicted

REGARDLESS of what may finally be the fate of the German nation, its people will for many years come bear the stigma of hate, as a result of the terrible atrocities which recent Allied advances have uncovered. The terrible and almost unbelievable atrocities committed by Germans without a doubt whose names are recorded in the history of mankind.

In the last few days we have read horror stories that not only stir the imagination but turn the stomach as well. There can no longer be any doubt about the truthfulness of these atrocities, as stories of Nazi slaughter and torture and starvation are no longer in the "heavenly class." They are now based on the firm testimony of thousands who have witnessed and suffered from them, including our own American soldiers, and on the personal observation of our soldiers, correspondents and representatives of Congress.

The rapid invasion of Germany and seizure of a number of concentration and prison camps revealed the grim evidence of slaughter and torture which the retreating Germans did not have time to hide. These stories have been printed, objectionable as they are, because it is absolutely necessary that the American people realize the full enormity of the crimes committed by the Germans.

We can't find such a record in any other period in history. A record which shows millions of men, women and children, shot, gassed, burned to death or buried alive; thousands of prisoners of war and captive civilians worked mercilessly to, brought to the grips of starvation; skin torn from emaciated bodies of human victims and used for binding copies of Hitler's literary atrocity, "Mein Kampf"; men murdered and their skulls used as wine cups; war prisoners herded into a mess hall, sprayed with inflammable liquid and burned alive; entire towns destroyed and the inhabitants killed in fits of anger over German military reverses; Allied war prisoners mowed down by machine gun fire.

It takes you shudder to read the sickening, disgusting and barbaric details of these German atrocities. But it would be foolish indeed for us to ignore such stories. They are true, and only by knowing the truth can we reach a wise decision as to how the German people are to be dealt with after Germany is finally defeated. Allied nations must be so stern with them that they never again will be in a position to commit such abominable crimes against humanity.

These horrible atrocities cannot be attributed to a few criminals, for the brutality revealed in such a gigantic scale that it had to be the work of millions. News dispatches from Germany Thursday by Allied correspondents revealed that German civilians and Nazi party leaders, as well as German soldiers are known to have participated in the atrocities.

We can thank the speed of the Allied advances for saving the lives of thousands of prisoners who otherwise would have died. The advances have also resulted in capture of evidence before it could be destroyed or obliterated. This evidence, beyond all question, convicts the German people as a nation—not just a few leaders.

God speed the day when the Germans are brought to their knees; when the German military machine is annihilated; when conditions are imposed which will forever prohibit Germany from waging another war, and committing such terrible atrocities as are now being revealed. Yes, we repeat, God speed the day.

of American lives, while one of our allies retains outposts off our shores, like Newfoundland, Bermuda, Jamaica and Trinidad; while another asserts overlordship of strategic land like Lithuania, Estonia, Latvia, Poland and other Balkan nations with possible later political claims yet to be asserted for lands on the shores of the Pacific?"

Veterans Generally Are Receiving Good Care

A PUBLIC DEEPLY CONSCIOUS of its debt to the nation's fighting men will welcome Representative Rankin's assurance that so far no member of the House Veterans committee, which has been investigating veterans' hospitals, has discovered anything to substantiate charges that patients in these institutions have been the victims of "shocking mistreatment."

Mr. Rankin's statement was in the nature of a preliminary summary of the reports returned to him so far, and apparently some members of the committee have yet to inform him of their findings. But the picture to date encourages the belief that it will not be changed substantially when all its details have been touched in.

Mr. Rankin says that while some cases have been found where improvements are needed, veterans generally are receiving "fine treatment and handling" in their hospitals. That is the direct antithesis of the view taken by Representative Philbin, of Massachusetts, who recently declared that "a scandal exists" in the treatment of wounded veterans.

Let there be any doubt about the facts, either in the public mind or in the minds of those whose sons or husbands are or may be under care in these hospitals, the committee plans to hold hearings at which its members will give full accounts of what they learned from personal visits. This testimony should clear up the matter for good and all.

Perhaps it was not a bad thing that the charges, though they have been proved exaggerated, were made at this time. The result will be to reassure all concerned that this obligation is being conscientiously discharged and that any shortcomings will be corrected.

THE BROWSER

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Here are five lines out of Robert Frost's "A Masque of Reason" (Henry Holt), which is a New England poet's very fine story of the forty-third chapter of the Book of Job. . . . God appears before Job and his wife who have been resting in sweet oasis of eternity and says to him:

"I've had you on my mind a thousand years To thank you some day for the way you helped me."

Establish once for all the principle That there's no connection man can reason out Between his just deserts and what he gets."

Then the argument starts, much of it between Job's wife and God but with some discussion by Satan himself, who is a rather melancholy figure subdued, says God by man's figurative use of him which has "pretty well reduced him to a shadow of himself." . . . A fairly grim philosophy is Frost's but a manful and self-respecting one. It goes something like this: Use your suffering as a forge to hammer out spiritual progress. That ought to be enough for any man.

The Sun Dial Press has just published the first collected edition of the best short stories of Jack London. More than 300 pages in one volume. London was once the most popular story writer in the world and his was translated into eleven languages. His fame has dimmed, however. . . . Same press has published "Best Stories of O. Henry" selected by Bennett Cerf and Van H. Cartmell. The other day in a magazine the Browser read a short story about a pretty Scotch lassie who was almost in love with an American sergeant, who told her that in his home his mother had a washing machine, an electric stove, a toaster and many other gadgets and that he himself, just a working man, had owned an automobile. . . . So she turned to her Scotch lad and said she was no longer dazzled by the American boy. She'd decided he was a terrible LIAR. . . . O. Henry once wrote approximately that story about a sweet little ignoramus of a New York girl who met a rich fellow in Connecticut and he fell in love with her and asked her to marry him and told her about the wonderful trip on a wonderful boat they would take on their honeymoon. So she gave him the mitten because, as she told her friends, he was a cheap skate who wanted to marry her and take her on a ferry trip to Coney Island!

San Francisco, Symbol of Yankee Courage, Is Fitting Meeting Place for Conference

By DREW PEARSON

SAN FRANCISCO—Despite jam-packed hotels, Roosevelt was wise when he picked this city as the meeting place for the United Nations conference, for San Francisco is the symbol of the courage of the American people.

Gutted by one of the worst fires in history, hopeless San Francisco bounced back to become one of our great American cities and host to a conference which seeks to restore hope to a hopeless world—the world today, gutted and war-torn, is no worse off than San Francisco after the earthquake of 1906. Yet it came back—Europe and Asia, if they take a lesson from the City of the Golden Gate, can do the same—there is a zippy atmosphere here which inspires diplomats here which inspires diplomats here which inspires diplomats here.

Delegates take on the spirit of the city which surrounds them. The pressure of newspapers, the radio, the local welcoming committees, even the taxi drivers and hotel people can help to spur success. When delegates know that an eager anxious city plus an eager anxious nation is watching them, depending on them, they thing twice before going home empty-handed.

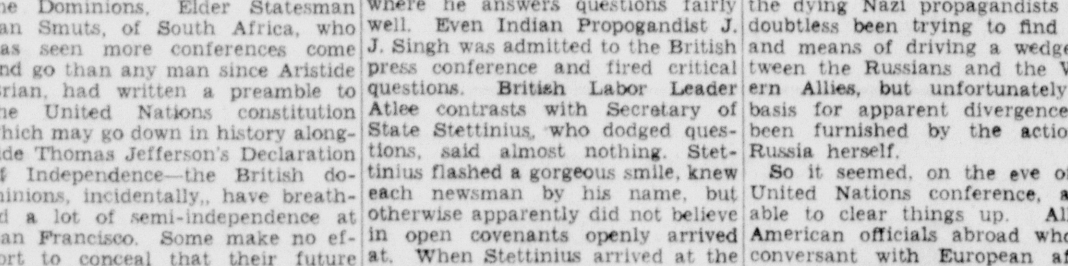

Russians Remain Isolated Latin-Americans have a word for it "ambiente" or atmosphere—that is why the Russian delegation is making things tough. Language is one barrier between the Russians and contagious atmosphere of San Francisco. Another barrier is the way the Russians remain isolated. They won't expose themselves to contagion. They are shutting up in hotel suites unexposed to the hustling, contagious, "never say no ambiente" of this town which raised itself from ashes.

The British got off to the best conference start—with the help of the Dominions. Elder Statesman Jan Smuts, of South Africa, who has seen more conferences come and go than any man since Aristotle, had written a preamble to the United Nations constitution which may go into history alongside Thomas Jefferson's Declaration of Independence—the British dominions, incidentally, have breathed a lot of semi-independence at San Francisco. Some make no effort to conceal that their future

British Labor Leader Clement Attlee takes a constitutional in the evening up and down San Francisco's steep hills. Despite his 61 years, he takes the hills as fast as he does his press conferences, where he answers questions fairly well. Even Indian Propagandist J. G. Singh was admitted to the British press conference and fired critical questions. British Labor Leader Attlee contrasts with Secretary of State Stettinius, who dodged questions, said almost nothing. Stettinius flashed a gorgeous smile, knew each newsmen by his name, but otherwise apparently did not believe in open covenants openly arrived at. When Stettinius arrived at the Washington airport, the navy band played "lights out," the navy band played "lights out," the navy band played "lights out."

Senator McCarran's Junkie Nevada's rotund Senator Pat McCarran has got himself another free trip to the West coast, to say nothing of his home town—Reno. He is Senate observer to the San Francisco conference. Pat worked it through his pal, Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, head of the Senate Appropriations committee. Since Stettinius needs appropriations next year he obliged. McKellar was glad to scratch McCarran's back, because McCarran had recently scratched his. McCarran recommended passage of the Senate resolution investigating Silliman Evans and The Nashville Tennessean, which has been too, too critical of Senator McKellar to please him overmuch. Nevada's McCarran, incidentally, is a past master at getting junkies to the west coast at government expense. For three years he was chairman of a committee investigating forest grazing permits, the future of fishing, placer mining claims, conservation of wildlife, and crowding of ranges and various subjects which took at getting junkies to the west coast at government expense. So now, that the future of fishing has been worked to the bone as a source of investigation, Senator McCarran will investigate the diplomats and what they do at San Francisco.

GETS HOLMES TROPHY

FOR "OUTSTANDING COVERAGE OF THE BATTLEFRONTS," International News Service correspondent Frank Coniff (above) has been awarded the George B. Holmes Memorial Trophy for 1944. Native of Danbury, Conn., now with the United States Ninth Army in France, Coniff gained fame as a "one-man beachhead" at Elba, and later swam miles through rough seas to aid in the rescue of French Colonial troops endangered on a sinking ship.

expressed the fear that Russia might go her way alone.

The preponderant opinion in America, on the other hand, was that Russia made various concessions to the United States, and the Yalta pact was hailed as a notable achievement in unity. Unfortunately the Russians derived the idea that the United States would not be seriously disturbed about future steps taken on a unilateral basis. But the Russians have now been given a new picture of American opinion and of the ill effects that might flow from a continuance of one-sided action.

Truman's Venture Required

It wasn't, therefore, any one thing but several things which combined to influence President Truman to deal directly with the heart of the whole international situation—the relations of the Western Allies to Russia. If those relations could be put on an intimate basis of close collaboration, every major obstacle could be surmounted and not only would a new charter for the United Nations be written but a better association achieved between the larger powers whose voice in the council is to be so powerful.

What view will Marshal Stalin take after he reads Mr. Molotov's reports? There is every reason to believe the Russian chieftain will find that a genuine partnership in the policy field is the only way to insure the same kind of partnership in matters of lend-lease and reparations and in settling the thousand and one vexing problems that inevitably must arise in handling occupied Germany.

Mr. Truman's first venture in diplomacy has been bold but it was required by the trend of recent events, and when the whole story is unfolded, there will be a sense of pride in the president's efforts and simplicity in handling perhaps the biggest problem of this fateful year.

Domestic Problem Remains Unsolved, Pettengill Says

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

President Truman has dedicated himself to the preservation of the American way of life. Will he succeed, or will he find that he can do no more than momentarily check the forces now loose in the world and here which are moving toward national socialism—the complete management of the people by government?

Thomas Jefferson said: "The natural progress of things is for liberty to yield and government to gain ground."

Certainly the powers of our federal government have been rapidly expanded during these recent years. Since Pearl Harbor part of that growth has been temporarily unavoidable. Modern war requires almost total mobilization under central control. That is the question: whether the controls will be demobilized when fighting ends.

Newton Baker once wrote me that in 1919 the advocates of a planned economy tried to persuade President Wilson to impose the war controls upon peacetime America. The big government planners, however, were not strong then and certain had no friend in Woodrow Wilson. He said: "I do not want to be taken care of by the government, either directly, or by any instruments through which the government is acting. Give me right and justice and I will undertake to take care of myself."

Wilson Lifted Controls Believing this, Mr. Wilson gave freedom back to America. He did so voluntarily. He was not compelled to do so by an adverse Congress. The railroads, telegraph and telephone lines were restored to private management. Government controls over a thousand items of our national life were lifted, and we had a free country. Taxes were reduced. Ten billion dollars of national debt were soon paid off, and for eight years we had a greater degree of prosperity than this or any other country ever knew.

It finally went into a disastrous tailspin due to the backwash of the war, due to unwise tariff policies, Russia's Action Blamed

To no small extent, of course, the dying Nazi propagandists have doubtless been trying to find ways and means of driving a wedge between the Russians and the Western Allies, but unfortunately the basis for apparent divergence has been furnished by the action of Russia herself.

So it seemed, on the eve of the United Nations conference, advisable to clear things up. All the American officials abroad who are conversant with European affairs, as well as high officials here, were of one mind—namely, that something bigger than the Polish question had arisen, something that had to be tackled forthrightly and promptly.

The problem is whether the United States, Great Britain and Russia are to furnish money and materials to each other on the assumption that this is an inter-Ally enterprise in the economic and military field only to find that no such conception of unity obtains in the so-called political or policy field.

Reds Given New Picture

It will be recalled that certain specific pledges were made at the Yalta conference and all that the United States is insisting on is that these agreements be fulfilled. This writer called attention after the Yalta conference to the fact that Russia at the Teheran conference of 1943 had promised to take up matters growing out of the liberated areas on an inter-Ally rather than a unilateral basis and

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Last week a circus came to Hollywood. You know how when a circus comes to town everybody turns out to see the freaks. In Hollywood, it was vice versa. . . . I remember when I was a kid I used to carry water for the elephants and get into the circus free . . . of course, I didn't do that this time . . . I found it much easier just to crawl under the tent. Everybody was watching the clowns with their big red noses. . . . then W. C. Fields came in and stole the show. They had a very good program . . . I know . . . I was selling them. It was quite embarrassing to see the sea lions flapping their fins and barking for fish. Now I know what I must look like when option-time comes putting an act . . . of course, the elephants never forget. . . . they were still wearing their Dewey buttons.

Never before have so many millions of our people been led to believe that although the people can not support the government (that is, it must always run in debt) nevertheless, the government can support the people. Deficit-spending has become a national narcotic. Its victims have rationalized the government printing press by saying, "We owe us," and therefore why worry about a debt which will soon average $10,000 per family.

Domestic Problem Unsolved

The spokesmen of the left say that the war has taught us how to solve unemployment, that the war is making us rich, that the government can create wealth, and similar jargon.

The war has not solved our domestic problem. While performing a service of very great importance, our twelve million men in uniform are not employed, in an economic sense. A city does not solve unemployment by putting everybody on the payroll of the fire or police departments. The federal government now owns an area almost as large as all of the land east of the Mississippi river. It has twenty billions invested in munition plants. It has a major interest in our merchant marine. Through its lending agencies it holds the mortgage on billions of other property, privately owned.

We have already gone far down the European trail. Neither President Truman nor any other public official, unless aided by the great majority of the citizens, can arrest the momentum of collectivism. Now, more than ever before, a nationwide, non-partisan educational campaign is needed to show how our Constitution and free enterprise system made America the most prosperous and freest nation in the world. Only if so informed and aroused can citizens reappraise and successfully resist the forces enmeshing them in serfdom to the state.

Sgt. Bill Mauldin Started Drawing While a Kid on an Arizona Ranch

Sgt. Bill Mauldin, creator of the doughboy cartoons "UP FRONT WITH MAULDIN," which now appear in The Cumberland News, grew up on a homestead near Phoenix, Arizona, and might have become a cowpuncher instead of an artist. But he was a scrawny lad who couldn't compete with the physical prowess of his huskier friends, and so he spent a lot of time by himself—drawing pictures.

This was something he could do well. While he was in high school, his ability led his art teacher to suggest that he go to the Academy of Fine Arts in Chicago. He promptly took the suggestion and spent a year there. His grandparents furnished part of the necessary funds and he eked out the rest by driving trucks, washing dishes, waiting on tables and painting signs.

Joined National Guard

Upon his return to Phoenix, a local political cartoonist who needed an assistant started giving him assignments, paying him $25 a week. Then, Mauldin branched out on his own. Approaching two rival political factions, he got orders from each to concoct campaign posters smearing the other. This little arrangement worked out well until someone discovered that the conflicting orders were all by the same artist. Young Mauldin got out of this awkward situation by joining the Arizona National Guard, which shortly afterward was taken into the army. He became a private in the Forty-fifth Infantry division.

That was in September, 1940, when he was 19. His early military life was not very conducive to art work, for he put in sixty-four days on K. P. during his first four months in the service. Then Lt. Col. Walter M. Harrison, former managing editor of the Daily Oklahoman, saw some of Mauldin's drawings and assigned him to do a weekly cartoon for the Forty-fifth division news.

During the next couple of years, as the division moved from training camp to training camp and finally overseas, Mauldin continued to turn out cartoons. By the time the Forty-fifth landed in Sicily in the summer of 1943, he was a full-time member of the staff of the division's newspaper.

Meanwhile, his drawings had also been appearing in Army Times, which is distributed to the army all over the world. They had become the delight of soldiers everywhere.

Was in Sicilian Campaign

Mauldin went through the Sicilian campaign and on into Italy with the Forty-fifth division, receiving the Purple Heart for injuries sustained from mortar shell fragments. While his unit was winning fame for its fighting qualities, he was winning individual fame with his realistic cartoons of life among the soldiers in the front lines.

Their witty, ironic humor attracted such wide attention that, early in 1944, Colonel Egbert White of Stars and Stripes arranged to have Mauldin transferred from the Forty-fifth division to the staff of the Mediterranean edition of Stars and Stripes. When Ernie Pyle, in one of his columns, hailed Mauldin as the No. 1 cartoonist of the war, newspaper syndicates in this country began bidding for his material. After some hot competition, rights were obtained by United Feature Syndicate, which started national distribution of his drawings under the title "UP FRONT WITH MAULDIN."

After he became a staff member of Stars and Stripes, he was based behind the lines, but he continued to spend most of his time at the front, traveling back and forth in a specially constructed jeep—the gift of a general who admired his work. This vehicle was fitted with blackout curtains so that he could work in it at night by the light of an electric bulb. The back seat was transformed into a locker in which he stored his rations and drawing materials and on top of which he could sleep. He not only covered the Italian front but, when his old outfit, the Forty-fifth, took part in the invasion of Southern France, he accompanied them, stowing away with his jeep aboard an LST.

Likes the Doughboys

At first, he could make his visits to the various fronts without fanfare—which was the way he wanted it—but as his fame has grown, he has had to pay the price of being a celebrity. Whenever he goes, high-ranking officers insist on entertaining him and making much of him. This is flattering but interferes somewhat with his job of gathering material. He wants to mingle with the doughboys, to identify himself with them, to remain a soldier among soldiers, for it's their point of view that his cartoons express.

Those who see Mauldin or pictures of him for the first time are invariably astonished by his extremely youthful appearance. He looks like a mere high school boy dressed up in soldier's clothes. But he's a husband and father. He married Norma Jean Humphries in 1942, while he was stationed in Abilene, Tex., and they have one son, Bruce Patrick, born while Mauldin was in Sicily.

Survey Shows Majority Would Split Germany Into Smaller Countries

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., April 27—One of the great problems facing the United Nations when the war in Europe ends revolves about what steps should be taken to keep Germany from threatening the future peace of the world.

Many suggestions have been made on this problem both here and in England. One of these suggestions which has attracted wide attention is that of Summer Welles, former Undersecretary of State.

In his book, The Time for Decision, Mr. Welles suggests carving Germany into three states, because of his "conviction that German unity means a continuing threat to the peace of the entire world."

A nation-wide survey on a question embodying one of the principles of the Welles plan finds that, while short of a majority, the predominant group among those questioned favor the idea of splitting Germany up into smaller states. The question in the survey was this:

"Do you approve or disapprove of splitting Germany per-
a. nently into a number of smaller countries?"

The replies:

Approve 40%
Disapprove 32%
Undecided 28%

If only the vote of people who attended college is counted, the largest group disapproves of breaking Germany up, while the weight of opinion among others is in favor of the idea.

Persons Who Attended College 42% 44% 14%
Persons Who Did Not Attend College 46% 34% 20%

Grade School or had no schooling 37% 35%

All of those approving the idea of splitting Germany into smaller states, as shown in the present survey, would not necessarily name that as their first choice among the possible solutions to the problem. Their approval in this survey is important as an indication of their willingness to go along with drastic proposals designed to remove Germany as a future military threat.

You feel a stirring of interest in a new hat, or the latest football score. You haven't forgotten love—your grief is just as great. But life has taken hold of you again. Life is needing you, clamoring for you, demanding that you take your place.

There are the old responsibilities to be taken up again. There is that new duty which you have avoided which your friends have helped you avoid, during your black hours. They're waiting for you.

Reluctantly you realize this. But you turn your face away. You don't want to take up those responsibilities again. You don't want to come back into life. Why? You say it's because your heart is broken. And you believe that.

You believe it because you want to believe it. Unconsciously grief has become a convenience!

It has become an escape from people and things you do not want to face. It has become an alibi for selfishness and laziness and cowardice. If you did not have that grief, if you laid it aside bravely, you would have to mingle with the world—you would have to face competition and criticism. But grieving, you can lock yourself away, you can hide your sorrow. And no one will dare condemn you for doing so.

"Poor Sally," they'll say, "she's never been the same since Billy died. It's wonderful, and tragic, to live like that."

And, hearing them, you'll not only feel excused—but you'll feel that you are set apart by your great disaster—that you're not like other people—that you should be pitied and honored because you cannot, will not come back into life.

But of course the truth is—you deserve neither pity nor honor. Chronic grief is not beautiful—it's cowardly and contemptible. You've no more right to use grief as an escape than we have to use alcohol or morphine or gambling. Broken hearts are not a rare, personal calamity. They are part of the common lot and should be borne as such. Broken-hearted people should be more useful than other citizens, rather than less so. It's bad to pity broken-hearted people too much or too long. It's bad to let them pity themselves. I know. My heart was broken and people pitied me. It nearly made a bum of me.

The hardest part about grief is not enduring it—but giving it up. You've lost someone. Someone who gave up all the sweetness and meaning in life. And your heart is broken, terrible days! You wake you sleep, you go about your work. It's all the same. You're in a daze of misery—drugged by sorrow. You're as truly dead as that dear one who has gone. You're sure that life will never come back.

And you don't want it to come back. You don't want to live with your darling gone. But it does come back. Without your knowing it, without your willing it against all your desire, life comes back. Creeping slowly, rising softly, in a tide, life comes back. You have an appetite again. You can sleep.

Gephart School To Have Branch Library in Summer

Will Be Open Three Days a Week, 500 Books for Children, Adults

The urgent need for a branch library to be opened at the Gephart school was stressed by Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian at the Cumberland Public Library, at the "Recreation" meeting of the Gephart Parent-Teacher Association last evening. She pointed out that the children have to walk one and six-tenths miles to the library and cross two railroads.

It is wonderful for any child to have access to books, Miss Walsh pointed out, and declared that the Gephart children are especially appreciative of the opportunity. She illustrated her point by explaining that when 220 books were loaned to Gephart school, the circulation for six weeks was something like 2,500; and one class of forty pupils each read forty-four books, which were well within their grasp and at the same time entertaining.

Miss Walsh reported that the library branch in South Cumberland has been most successful, and she feels that a branch library in Gephart district is needed. She pointed out that the library will open a branch for the summer with several hundred books the first week and increase it to 500 books, which will mostly be new ones. Besides the children's books there will also be ones for the adults. The speaker also pointed out that while the children are using the school playground they will be able to run in and get their books.

The branch library will be housed in the school auditorium and will be open three days a week and a story telling hour will be conducted once a week. It will open within a week or two after the close of the school year.

George R. Mease presided and the parents, and Miss Anne Tennant, principal, expressed their enthusiasm for the project and the P-TA pledged 100 percent co-operation, as in previous activities.

Miss Ann Blakeslee Smith, member of the Cumberland Recreation committee explained the proposals for a recreational program for the city, since the P-TA is one of the organizations which has been actively backing the project. She said the council recommends a trained leader and a commission to be placed over him.

Robert L. Sisson, secretary of Central YMCA, spoke on "Youth and the Problems that are Facing Him Tomorrow," pointing out that in many instances it is the parent who is delinquent. He traced the problems of youth through history to stress his point.

The association also elected a nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Mary B. Marple, Mrs. Ormond Howe and Mrs. Chester Wilson. It will make its report at the meeting the first week in June. The program concluded with selections by the school Glee Club under the direction of Miss Roberta Stotler.

Giants and Cubs Battling for Lead In National Loop

By JOE REICHLIN
NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs and New York Giants, who staged a merry battle for a berth in the National League's first division last season right down to the wire, were at it again this year—but this time it is a battle for first place.

By winning their games today, the Giants and Cubs retained their one-two rating with the Giants' eight wins and two losses a pair of victories better than the Bruins record.

For the New Yorkers, Bill Voiselle registered his third straight triumph of the campaign and his second over the Dodgers by blanking Brooklyn with eight hits as Manager Mel Ott and Steve Filippowicz paced the Giants to a 5-0 victory.

Big Paul Derringer, in the midst of a great comeback after a seven-to-ten loss last year, gained his third straight triumph as the Cubs extended their winning streak to five games with a 7-3 win over Pittsburgh.

Boston's Red Sox came within five of the American League record of thirteen straight reverses at the start of the season by bowing for the eighth consecutive time, 5-3, to the Philadelphia Athletics.

George Myatt ran wild on the basepaths, making four hits, stealing three bases and scoring twice to lead Washington to a 6-4 triumph over the New York Yankees.

In the only other major league contest, Ed Heusser hurled four-hit ball for the Cincinnati Reds to trim the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, 2-1.

Hopkins Tossers Rally To Defeat Maryland

BALTIMORE, April 27 (AP)—Johns Hopkins university, evening its baseball series with the University of Maryland, came from behind today with a five-run rally in the eighth inning to beat the Terps, 10-9.

Maryland led throughout most of the game and was ahead 9-6 when the Blue Jays rallied.

Bill Benjamin gave up nine hits for Hopkins but he fanned eight and walked only two men. The game was loosely played, with both sides committing many errors. Heatley and Percy hurled for the Terps.

Cubs Down Bucs Behind Derringer

CHICAGO, April 27 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs made the most of loose Pittsburgh play to spank the Pirates, 7-3, today for their fifth straight victory and big Paul Derringer's third successive mound triumph.

Derringer yielded eight hits, one more than the Cubs collected off three Pirate hurlers, but was handed a 4-0 lead in the opening frame when outfielder John Barrett lost Don Johnson's fly in the sun for a three-run error.

Victim of all four Pirate miscues was Truett "Rip" Sewell, who allowed four hits in four innings and was charged with the loss. The box:

A's Hand Red Sox Eighth Setback

PHILADELPHIA, April 27 (AP)—The hapless Boston Red Sox ran afoul of the powerful right arm of Russ Christopher today and dropped their eighth straight, 5-3, to the Philadelphia Athletics.

A flock of errors almost ruined Christopher's six-hit performance as the Sox came from behind to knot the score 3-3 in the seventh.

But the A's snapped back quickly, scoring once in the last half of the seventh on Charley Metro's single—his first safe blow of the year—and Bobby Estalella's mighty three-base blow. Metro doubled in the eighth to score Joe Burns with the A's final tally. The box:

WESTERNPORT, April 27.—L. B. Slater, Chicago, special representative of Lions' International, outlined organizational procedures at the first dinner meeting of the Westernport-Luke Lions' club, which was held at 6:30 p. m. yesterday in the vestry of Trinity Methodist church, Piedmont, W. Va.

Sixty persons attended the dinner meeting, including twenty-seven charter members of the Westernport-Luke club, which was organized April 17; eighteen delegates from the Mt. Savage Lions' club; and twelve delegates from the Cumberland Lions' club.

J. E. Grindle, president, presided and introduced the speakers. Besides Slater, those who gave brief talks were Edgar D. Vandegrift, president of the Cumberland club, and Edward J. Conway, president of the Mt. Savage club.

Plans were made to hold a ladies' night banquet June 7, at which time the charter of the new club will be presented by the Rev. Donald F. Brake, Middletown, Md., district governor of the Western Maryland District of Lions' International. The time and place of the banquet will be announced later.

The dinner served at yesterday's meeting was prepared by the ladies of Trinity Methodist church.

The Allegany High Campers and the Beall High Mountaineers, of Frostburg, chalked up victories yesterday afternoon when the 1945 Bi-State Interscholastic Baseball Conference race was launched with two games here.

The West Siders polished off the Hyndman (Pa.) high nine, 10-2, scoring eight of their tallies in the fourth inning, and Beall turned back the LaSalle High Explorers, 4-2, at Community park.

Workman Stops LaSalle

John Workman, the conference's leading pitcher last season, faced only twenty-five Explorers as Coach "Jake" Carrington's team tossed away to an impressive start by Beall accounted for its runs in the fourth and sixth innings. In the fourth, Ben Hughes singled, Tom Dunn was safe on an error, Jim Blair filed to Tommy Geatz who doubled Dunn at first. Don Blair singled and took second on the throw home and Jim Crump singled blank across the payoff platter.

In the sixth, Blair doubled, Blank sacrificed, Jim Crump singled and an error permitted Crump to score. LaSalle, shut out for six innings, gathered its two counters in the seventh. Don Blair singled, Joe Langan popped up to the catcher, Geatz singled, John Esposto doubled and stole third, Jack Steiner tied to left and Joe Becker, batting for Jim Dorsey, struck out.

Workman, who won five games and lost one in the conference last spring, allowed only four hits and struck out nine. Geatz, the losing hurler, gave up seven singles and whiffed thirteen.

Hyndman Held to Two Hits

Tom Burns, who won two games and lost a pair for Hyndman last spring, and Olin Moody, a south-paw, teamed up on the mound to pitch Allegany to victory in its season opener.

Burns, who enrolled at Allegany last year, was touched for only two hits in the five innings he worked, while Moody, a newcomer, twirled hitless ball the last two frames.

One of Hyndman's runs was unearned. In the sixth, an error by Dick DeHart, another miscue by Jim Radcliffe, a wild pitch and an infield out gave the Pennsylvania team a marker. In the third, the visiting team took a brief lead when Gene Stair singled and Robert Miller tripled for Hyndman's only safeties.

Allegany marked up two runs in the bottom of the third when Radcliffe singled, Burns singled and stole second and an error by Stan Brooks allowed both runners to score.

In the Campers' big fourth, John Bachman was safe on an error, Bob Price singled and stole second, Radcliffe was hit by a pitched ball, Burns and Baker each singled, an error advanced all runners, DeHart singled, another error was marked down against Hyndman, Bachman, up for the second time in this inning, doubled, and Price came through with a two-bagger.

Allegany collected eleven hits off John Waltham with Charles Baker leading the attack with three singles. Price and Burns each had a double and single. The box scores:

Win over St. Louis

Cards Play without Services of Mort and Walker Cooper

CINCINNATI, April 27 (AP)—Dain Clay's timely hitting and big Ed Heusser's four-hit hurling today gave Cincinnati's Reds a 2-1 victory over the world champion St. Louis Cardinals before 1,064 shivering fans.

Clay, sophomore centerfield, singled in Kermit Wahl who had walked in the fifth, and doubled his pitcher home in the seventh after Heusser had forced Joe Just.

Heusser, who reported late to spring training from his Utah home, had plenty of zip all the way although he walked seven against three passes. Ted Wilks, his opposing shortstop, was out.

The Cards came to town without the services of either Mort or Walker Cooper, recently involved with the management in a salary dispute. Walker, the team captain, stayed home to await a call from the army, and Mort did not make the trip. Nor did he give any reason. The box scores:

Lidman Captures

120-Yard Hurdles

At Penn Relays

Swedish Star's Easy Triumph Features First-Day Program

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. PHILADELPHIA, April 27 (AP)—Haakon Lidman, the timber-skimming sports writer from Sweden, hammered out the only story of the Penn relays today as he raced to an easy triumph in the invitation 120 yard high hurdles race, feature of the first day of the fifty-first annual track carnival.

Lidman skimmed over the barriers in 14.4 seconds to win the first outdoor race of his American tour by a ten-yard margin. The time was only one tenth of a second slower than the carnival record set by Jack Keller, of Ohio State, in 1933.

Sweden Never Extended Off to a slow start in the final after winning his heat in 14.8 seconds, Lidman never was extended after he took the lead at the third hurdle. Cadet Leland Christensen, of West Point, took second after a duel with Morris Wilson, of Delaware State. Two other West Pointers, Andrew La Mar and Frederic Hartwig, brought up the rear. Lidman's more famous countryman, Gunder Haegg, is scheduled to make his farewell appearance here tomorrow in a handicap mile run in which he will give handicaps up to 180 yards to a group of American college runners.

Lidman's victory provided the climax of a long program during which only one last year's winner retained a title. Michigan's distance medley relay team won for the second year on the strength of a fine mile anchor leg by Bob Hume, who outran Rudy Simms, of New York university, to win by twenty-five yards.

Michigan became the only double winner of the first day's program when the Wolverine sprint medley team, with Ross Hume, Bob's twin brother, running the anchor leg, outran Army and N.Y.U. in the final event. The time of 3:30.8 was one of the day's better performances.

Kandi Wins Two-Mile Run. Army's Arthur Truxes, only defender of an individual title, was left far behind as John F. Kandl, of Cornell, junior national cross-country champion, set his own pace to win the two-mile run in 9:38.3. Coast Guardsman Donald O'Leary, of Atlantic City, N. J., beat out Armand Osterberg, of N.Y.U., for second.

Other individual winners were Edward Quirk, of Missouri, in the shot put, Navy Athletic specialist Fortune Gordon, of Camp Peary, Va., in the discus throw and Cadet Robert Conner, of Army, in the 400-meter hurdles.

The New York coast guard team, boasting such stars as Eulace Pease and Herbert Thompson, whipped N.Y.U., for the college quarter-mile relay title. Other championships went to Mercersburg, Pa., academy in the prep school quarter mile relay, to Cardozo high, of Washington, in the high school quarter and to Bishop Loughlin of New York city, in the high school medley.

The PGA Tourney Will Be Held at Dayton, Ohio CHICAGO, April 27 (AP)—The Professional Golfers Association 1945 tournament—a $20,000 event—will be held July 9-15 at Dayton, Ohio, the PGA announced today. Stanley C. Allyn, vice president of the Moraine Country Club of Dayton, signed the contract today with James Hines, tournament chairman representing the PGA.

The qualifiers for the tourney will be selected in twenty-nine sectional trials throughout the nation. Exempt from qualifications will be former PGA champions, the United States Open champion, members of the Ryder cup team and the resident professional at the Moraine country club.

Leo Durocher "Protests" Dutch Nieman's Homer

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Baseball's new commissioner, Senator Albert B. "Happy" Chandler, yesterday disclosed that he has made his first decision . . . in favor of Boston's Braves.

Leo Durocher, Brooklyn manager, facetiously wired Chandler: "Dutch Nieman hit ninth-inning homer that beat me (Tuesday) here by five first protest. What do you intend to do about it."

Chandler jokingly said he would inform Durocher that "my first decision is to give the game to Boston."

Nieman hit a homer with two men on in the ninth inning of Tuesday's game, giving the Braves an 8-6 victory.

Chandler's decision was made after a long conference with the league's owners and players.

Optimistic Horse

Owner Works Hard

On Derby Hopeful

Louis de Latour Is Confident Racing Will Be Resumed Soon

By SKIPPER PATRICK NEW ORLEANS, April 27 (AP)—It's lonesome out on the Fair Grounds racing strip these early mornings and a horse owner with less faith than Louis de Latour would be at home in bed.

But de Latour, a veteran of the thoroughbred business since 1906, is confident that racing will be resumed shortly and that the Kentucky derby will be run. And he's willing to bet that either of his derby nominees—Victory Lad and Ted Lewis—are capable of winning.

While other owners were shipping their horses to Mexico City and to Kentucky and eastern farms, de Latour stuck to Fair Grounds where his string hasn't missed a day of work since the racing ban became effective last Jan. 3.

"I'm sure that racing is coming back soon," de Latour said. "Some people are talking about killing the sport permanently, but such a thing is out of reason. Kill racing and you would crucify the State of Kentucky where millions are invested in the breeding industry."

De Latour says his horses would be ready for the Kentucky derby if it were run tomorrow. He's so confident the race will be held that he is shipping his candidates to Louisville May 7.

"Ted Lewis beat Victory Lad by a nose at six furlongs in 1:13 3-5 in a trial run over a very rough track a week ago," de Latour said. "The lad has the better record, but Ted Lewis (an Omaha horse) has been coming fast and I'll definitely run both in the Derby."

Victory Lad, a $10,000 package, won his last race at Churchill Downs last November, a few weeks after de Latour purchased the stallion. Neither Victory lad nor Ted Lewis was a standout as two-year olds, however.

Chandler Plans Cincinnati Office

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Chandler is under "strong consideration" as headquarters for major league baseball under Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler.

Chandler said today no definite decision has been made as to where his office will be located, but that "I am turning over in my mind" the advisability of establishing it in Cincinnati.

"Cincinnati is centrally located," Chandler said, adding that he knows of "no objection to putting it anywhere" he thinks advisable.

The present headquarters are in Chicago. Chandler will leave Washington tomorrow for a two-day visit at his home, Versailles, Ky., and an appearance at the Louisville-Columbus American Association game in Louisville Sunday.

He will be in St. Louis May 1 to participate in the St. Louis Browns' flag-raising ceremonies as last year's American League champions.

Chandler plans to discuss baseball generally with Will Harridge, American League head, while in St. Louis, as he did yesterday with Ford Frick, National League president, and Frank Shaughnessy, International League head.

Chandler Will Pay $26,865 Income Tax

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Kentucky's Senator A. B. "Happy" Chandler doesn't know it yet, but he'll have to pay $26,865 income tax on that $50,000 salary as baseball commissioner.

Walter Mulbry, his secretary, found out the bad news today from the Internal Revenue department. But he hasn't told Chandler.
